SAYS NO INTIMATION HAS BEEN MADE OF MOVEMENT OF MEXICAN TROOPS.

HOLD UP S. AMERICANS

Cabinet Has Delicate Question to Consider With Reference to Brazilians in Custody for "Sniping."

Washington, May 12.—President Wilson and members of the cabinet discussed today plans for the participation by the United States in the Mexican mediation conference to be held Monday at Niagara Falls, Ontario, and various problems which have arisen since the occupation of Vera Cruz by American military forces.

Word from Funston.

Just before the cabinet met, a message was received from General Funston at Vera Cruz in which the American commander declared that attempt to attack the waterworks at Vera Cruz has been made to cause "alarming reports."

There have been rumors, "that an attack was threatened. These have been due to the remarks of General Maas. The waterworks cannot be taken by force. If the lines should be moved, they could be repaired in a few hours."

General Funston said that no intimation of any movements of the Mexican troops for any such movement has been heard of. General Funston added that two hundred sacks of American mail for Mexico City, which had been delivered at the railway bridge, still lay on the tracks in possession of the Mexican forces. He has no news of Private Parks, who rode into the Mexican lines and has not returned.

Brazilians Captured.

Among issues which President Wilson and his cabinet had under consideration throughout the morning, was the appeal of the Brazilian minister at Mexico City to General Funston in behalf of the five South American men under arrest at Vera Cruz for "sniping" American soldiers off a tramp steamer. Three Brazilians are among the prisoners. The appeal came direct from a diplomatic representative of one of the mediating nations, has presented a delicate problem for decision. The manning of the light house on Lobos Island by American forces, to which Huerta's foreign minister has objected, and which has been considered a violation of the armistice, is another thing which was also taken up at the cabinet meeting.

Mazatlan Situation.

Consul W. E. Alger from Mazatlan reported today to the state department that the situation there is quiet. Several hundred constitutionalists were in the vicinity of Mazatlan when he left. At that time they were protecting troops in alternating thousands the zone that they would wear out the federalists.

Thirteen Americans were left at Mazatlan by their own wish. Most of these were women and children. Several hundred foreigners also refused to leave. Consul Alger said they were in a pitiful condition. The continued revolutions of the last few years has left a marked effect on the local institutions, especially the schools.

Secretary Bryan said that he knows that the Brazilian ambassador and the Argentine and Chilean ministers at Mazatlan had made formal representation in the state department in behalf of the South American forces firing at American troops. Mr. Bryan declined to disclose the nature of this communication but said an investigation was being made.

Silliman Released.

Senator Olivera, the Brazilian minister in Mexico City, informed the state department today that the Mexican government has ordered the immediate release of Vice Consul John R. Silliman, who has been held a

HERE'S STORY OF TAMPOCO INCIDENT IN NUT-SHELL FROM A YANKEE MAN.

Columns of news dispatches have been printed about what happened at Tampico when the men from the naval dispatch ship Dolphin were arrested and the flag of the United States insulted. But this short description written by Seaman James Cole of the Dolphin's boat's crew to his sister in St. Louis, takes the prize for clearness:

"The other day we went ashore to get supplies and we got too far down the river on the fring line. As soon as we hit the beach the federal army captured us, and we were flying the American flag, too. They held us prisoners about fifteen hours. Our captain came over and got us. They took the American flag off our boat and threw it overboard. They thought the paymaster was a relative of ex-President Madero. The admiral certainly did rave."

ROSE TELLS STORY OF ROSENTHAL PLOT

Bald Jack Rose, State's Star Witness, Tells Same Story on Stand as in First Trial

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, N. Y., May 12.—"Bald" Jack Rose, the star witness of the first trial of Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, appeared in the role again today, a trifle sicker than he appeared before. He took the stand shortly before noon and calmly told of the plot laid and the events leading up to the gambler's death. It was about the same story that he told the first time.

Briefly Rose recited how Becker and Rosenthal had entered into partnership and told of the quarrel, and how expose for Becker was imminent, with the plot for Rosenthal's death. Add Rose said that Becker had been running a month, Rose went on. "Becker wanted money. There had better be some dividends," Becker said, "or I close him up." He said that complaints had begun about the place. He asked me to get Rosenthal to stand for a raid.

"When I said this to Herman he said, 'Do you think I'm a fool? Every one knows Becker is my partner, and to have him raid me would make me the laughing stock of New York.' He threatened to make trouble if this was carried out."

DENOUNCES HUERTA IN A FIERY SPEECH

SENATOR OWEN, IN SENATE TODAY REVIEWS BLOODY DEEDS OF MEXICAN DICTATOR.

OPPOSES RECOGNITION

Approves of Wilson's Policy Demanding Removal of Federal Leader and Occupation of Vera Cruz.

Washington, May 12.—Asserting that President Wilson was more than justified in refusing to recognize Victoriano Huerta as president of Mexico, and that the United States must not turn back until it has established constitutional government in that republic, Senator Owen today startled the senate with a remarkable denunciation of the Mexican dictator. His speech was an intimate history of Huerta from the time he took the reins of power from the hands of Madero to the present day. Through it ran the color of blood and its story reeked with murder, intrigue and violence where innocent men were talked too much were to silence behind prison walls and Huerta by force of arms and the impelling power of fear imposed his will upon 12,000,000 people.

To combat his assertions the senator produced confidential documents from the state department, and data from other sources. He rejoined, he said, that mediation had been offered.

MUST ENFORCE DEMANDS

"But," he declared, "let no mistake be made. We must demand order, constitutional self-government, and the rights of sovereignty be placed in the hands of the people of Mexico, under safeguards that will promise liberty, human rights and stability of government to the people of Mexico and assure our own future peace and security, and if necessary, we must enforce these demands at the cannon's mouth."

If we are compelled to use force, we must first protect the people of Mexico and assure our own life and happiness as we did in Cuba. Patriotic Mexicans honestly desiring peace and justice and the establishment of the bona fide self-government of Mexico by the people of Mexico should co-operate with us.

Senator Owen told again the story of the fall of Porfirio Diaz, the rise of Madero, and the plot of Huerta, and the overthrow of Madero, which led to the overthrow and death of Madero and put Huerta in the President's chair. He recited the uprising of Carranza, on authority of the United States, and the revolution, and told how Senator Dominguez dared denounce Huerta to the Mexican senate, declaring that Huerta had pacified the country by exterminating the opposition. He said that he intended to keep his post by inciting a conflict with the United States.

HUERTA'S METHODS

The senator said that shortly afterward Huerta was reported murdered. Then he told of attempts to secure an investigation of his death by the Mexican congress, and how Huerta put the congress under arrest.

"Whereupon," he continued, "Huerta, by decree, declared himself invested, in flagrant violation of the constitution, with legislative and judicial powers, and declared himself dictator of Mexico. Moreover, he declared the constitutional guarantees of freedom from arrest for members of congress abrogated and having thus secured the legislative, executive and judicial power of Mexico, he charged almost the entire Mexican congress with sedition and treason."

Senator Owen dwelt at some length on the election of Huerta as president of Mexico on the 26th of October, 1913. He said that while Huerta had announced he would not be a candidate, he had enlarged the powers of the election machinery. Four days before the election, the senator said, despite formal assurances to the diplomats in Mexico City that he was not a candidate, Huerta sent a broadcast urging the people to vote for Huerta. Huerta sent instructions to his governors, the senator, to return the votes favorable to him and to return the votes unfavorable to him to the precincts, thus insuring a void election. This program, he said, was carried out in every detail, and the Mexican congress, after having less than half the voting precincts had sent in returns, declared the election void and expressed a desire that Huerta continue as provisional president until some future time which might be fixed by congress.

"HUERTA" HE ADDED DRAMATICALLY, "STILL IS DICTATOR."

"Of the 23 elected governors of Mexico at the time Huerta seized the governing powers," the senator said, "only two at the end of the year remained at home attending their duties. Ten of them had joined the revolution, a number had been murdered by a major general of Huerta, who tied the governor of Chihuahua on the railroad tracks and backed a yard engine over him to teach him better manners than to oppose Huerta. All vacancies were filled by military governors appointed by Huerta."

"Huerta's federal officers of the army appear to have been instructed to take no prisoners. Every captured officer, high and low, was put before a wall and shot, most of the common soldiers taken prisoners were shot in like fashion and a few allowed to save their lives by joining the federal army. Every member of the cabinet named for Huerta was removed. Some of them fled the country, one of them was killed, but not one was left in the cabinet."

"During the fall of 1913 numerous evidences appeared of Huerta trying to involve the United States in some act of aggression or invasion. His purpose in doing this was to stir the patriotism of the Mexican people, make them forget his crimes, and induce them to get behind him as a defender of Mexico against an invading foe. Finally, April 9, he had the impudence to arrest sailors in our uniform under the shelter of our flag, at Tampico, and march them in procession through the streets. He knew perfectly well that his private expression of regret was no amends to the government of the United States for this international affront and indignity."

"Huerta desired to provoke some action that would unite behind him

Frank Chance has told Ray Caldwell that if he continues his present club he will soon be in the same class with Matty, Walter Johnson, Joe Wood, Alexander and the ilk. The reason is that Ray is really beginning to take himself seriously, which augurs well for further improvement. Caldwell had never thought to work hard, figuring that he'd never amount to a great deal, anyway.

Miller Huggins says that the real reason why the Cardinals are beginning to take on the aspects of a regular ball team is that he has been able to get rid of several trouble makers and that today there is a much better spirit among his men.

Wilbert Robinson begins to look like the biggest hit in the way of a manager that the Brooklyn team has ever had. The fans are with Wilbert to a man and backing him for pennants and so on.

Frank O'Day is urging his batters to soak the first ball pitched if possible, whether there are men on the base or not. This scheme is likely to interfere somewhat with the base stealing of the Cubs if it is carried out as earnestly as O'Day has suggested it. The Giant's great success in the bays has been the result of their careful manner at the bat. When one or more bases are occupied, O'Day has always taught his men to put four as many as they can, to steal past five or six pitches whenever possible and give the base runner every chance to advance. This also has the effect of wearying the pitcher somewhat, so that after a number of innings he is not as alert as he might be. And men on bases are able to get a good start from the base. McGraw's lunch has worked so well in the past that O'Day would be wise to ignore it.

In the several games Walter Johnson has lost this season he has not been able to be the reason for the defeat. Many a game has he won on a single curve in the whole nine innings. He is able to groove the ball and put it just the way he wants it. There was no chance of conceding. In his first two games this season he was there with his usual brilliant form, but in several appearances since he has not shown his speed. It is being earnestly hoped by many that such will not continue.

As long as they're calling Joe McGraw's Chicago Fed team the "Chicago" why don't they carry the idea and call the White Sox the "Whites"? It's doubtful whether even a change of name would help the Sox to retain their popularity. It'll be a little while before they're the big scream in Chicago they were in 1909.

CARPENTER DOWNED BY FIGHTING MINER

Burlington White Hope Knocked Out in Third Round by Stanley Klosky at Plattville

Ned Carpenter, the Burlington and Beloit white hope, fell prey to the prowess of Stanley Klosky, the Cuba big miner and outpointed him in the last night, in the third round. Carpenter in the first round floored the big miner and outpointed him in the second round. Early in the third session the Plattville white hope hooked across a solid right that put Carpenter down for the count and a nap in dreamland besides. That one punch was sufficient.

So far the lanky Cuba City fighter has met five heavyweights and all have taken the count once he landed square. The first match he won in four rounds, the second in three, the third in two, and King of Chicago fell in the second, and Carpenter finished the list in the third. The population out in the mining district are certain that Klosky could beat the best of them and a match between him and McMahon of Janesville should draw a two thousand dollar house before the local club. McMahon challenged Klosky, and President Ithig is making an effort to stage the bout. The preliminaries were between unknown boxers and were lame affairs.

Amusements

THE APOLLO.

The management of the Apollo has signed up with the Famous Players Company for a big motion play production for the first three days of each week. These players and their work are so well known that the public may be sure there are many a treat in store for them. Next week's feature will be "Pail in Jail," starring Tully Marshall and members of the original Broadway cast. The Apollo is showing these features at popular prices, although other cities are charging from 25c to 50c admission.

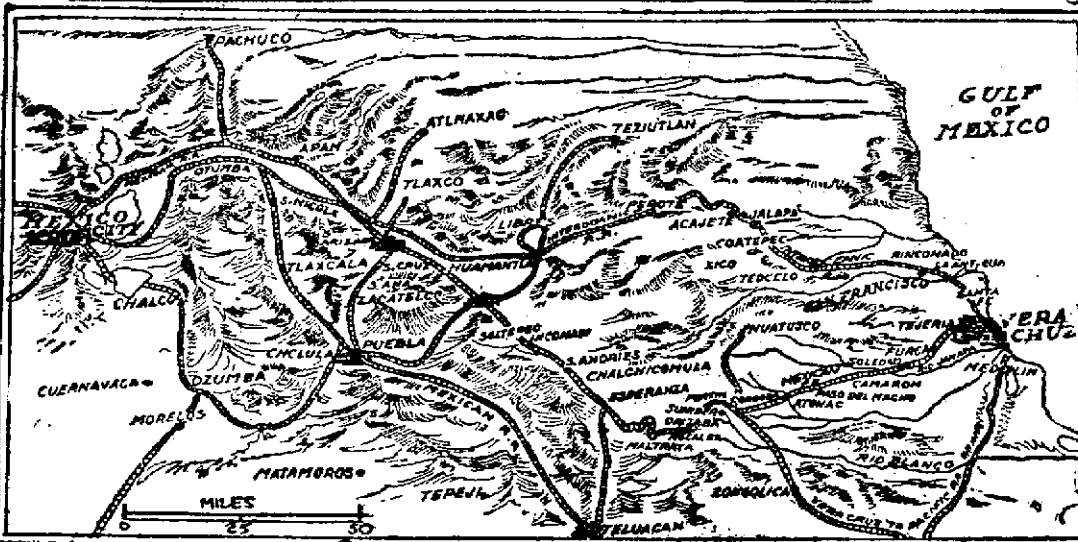

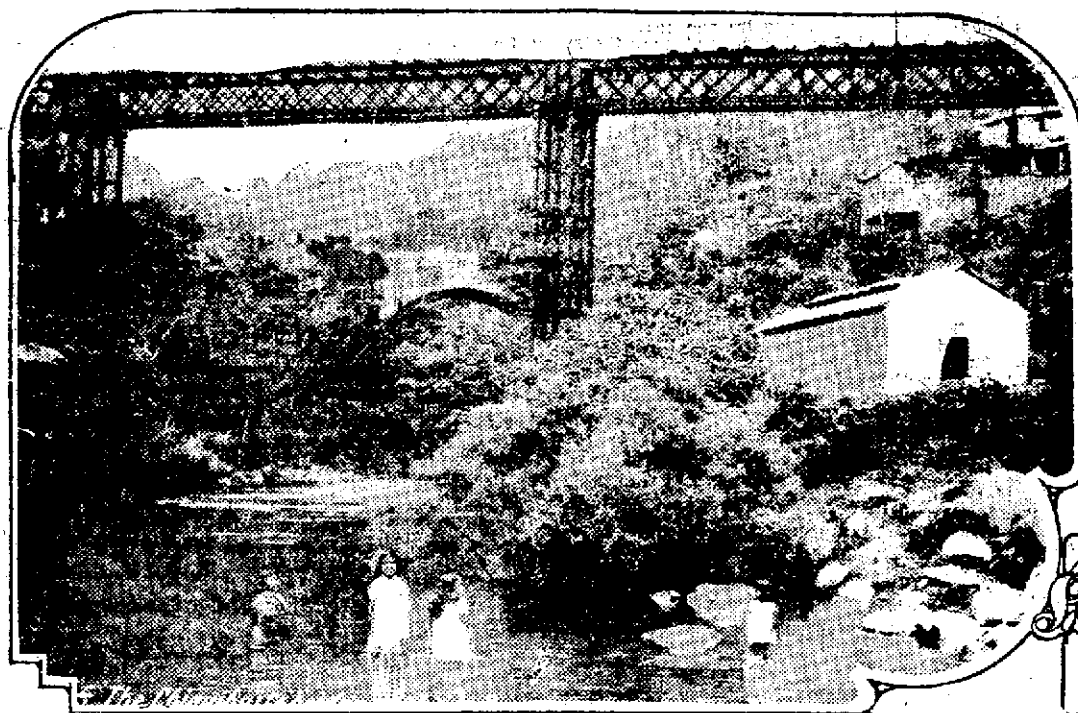

If the reception given Soldiers of Fortune, which is now running, is any prediction for the others, they will be well received. Soldiers of Fortune needs little introduction to the lovers of fiction or the theatre-going public. Richard Harding Davis' exceptionally strong story of rugged Americans, their struggles and adventures in the tropical republic of Olancha, has been eagerly read by millions the world over. Mr. Davis personally secured the co-operation of the entire Cuban Army, which was placed at his disposal, and also the aid of the U. S. Navy, which loaned the U. S. S. Ocelot and the U. S. S. Revenue Cutter Albatross, together with the marines and sailors of the two vessels. It is a wonderful picture, and will be shown tonight and Wednesday.

Abe Martin

Tilford Moots, a charter member of the Elite Suit Club, has taken out of the game on account of sickness and injuries. They are about ready to play regularly again. Rickey figures the return of this trio will enable his club to continue its fast pace.

Light to Grow Skin.

Dr. Joseph Schmashkin, house physician at Lebanon hospital, the Bronx, has discovered that by exposing a large wounded surface to the direct rays of the sun and of powerful electric lights when the sun is not shining, keeping it at the same time always exposed to the air, the wound heals rapidly, new skin growing over raw surfaces so large that grafting would be necessary under any other treatment.

Bobby Wallace, Walter Leverenz and Sam Agnew, all regulars with the St. Louis Browns, have been out of the game on account of sickness and injuries. They are about ready to play regularly again. Rickey figures the return of this trio will enable his club to continue its fast pace.

Plague of Cockroaches in England. Egyptian cockroaches are swarming in the workings of a large colliery in Glamorganshire, England. The creatures came over, and were introduced in some Egyptian fodder used in the stables. They have bred at an incredible rate, and their swarms now form a serious menace to health in the colliery. A Sutherland expert has been engaged to attempt their extermination.

THE JOY OF DANCING EXERCISE

Very few women or men seem to care to Tango or get Dancing Exercise unless they are assured the freedom from aching feet that Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, always gives. Since the tendency to hold Dancing parties has become almost a daily and hourly necessity in every community, the sale of Allen's Foot-Ease, so the Druggists report, has reached the highwater mark. CENSUS METHODS.

At last we have a man who makes a suggestion for a census of cities and rural districts that sounds practical. Have the census taken by the postmen. How does that sound? It is practical. It is good common sense. There is no doubt that Janesville lost population at the last census by carelessness of the census-takers. One case that comes to mind was that of a lady of doubtful age. Heaven forbid calling her young or old. She refused to answer the question put to her by the census-taker, called them impertinent, and rather than turn in a half report he simply neglected to count her at all, as an imperfect report he was not paid for. Another case that comes to mind is that of a family that was away from home when the census-taker called. The neighbors guessed at the answers they should give and not half the family, if any, were registered in his book. With the mail carriers it would be different. They are in constant touch with the families of the city. They know the new families on their routes, know how many there are in the household and relative how old they are without questioning. It would be easy work for them to do what the inexperienced, politically-appointed census-takers fail to do. This idea comes from former Director of Census Dr. E. Dana Durand, who has just retired from his work. What is true of the city residents is also true of the farm residents and the rural carrier would be brought into play there. The idea is a good one and why would it not be feasible for a census taken by the twenty-five thousand or commercial clubs at the present time to set the real population of Janesville right?

THE CELEBRATION.

It has been decided that Janesville shall celebrate July Fourth this year in a fitting manner, according to ancient custom. That means that the residents from all parts of the adjacent territory will plan to spend the day in Janesville, for when Janesville celebrates it is "some celebration." Except for climatic conditions, rain and such things, Janesville has never fallen down on a celebration yet even in the days when it was customary to have a flag raising, chase the greased pig, have foot races, an orator of the day and a parade by the militia company in gay uniform. Of late years the Nonesuch Brothers' circus parade has been an attraction par excellence. It is proposed to again revive this feature and show the younger generation what it is. It is some years since it was attempted, but if the men who made it famous—George McKee, and others—can be induced to take charge of this feature, with others to do the actual work, its success is assured. It is said that half the sum needed is already subscribed, a most encouraging sign thus early in the season, and this alone should be a guarantee that Janesville is going to celebrate, and celebrate right.

THE FACTORY PROPOSITION.

JANESVILLE has a rare opportunity of securing a factory that will mean much for the industrial development of the city. It is a going concern and one which experts expect great things of in the future. The subscribing of stock to bring this plant to Janesville will be money invested as it is safe to say that within a short time a second plant, manufacturing a machine which is in constant demand, will also remove from its present location to Janesville if the first is secured. There are men who are experts in the engineering line of business who speak most favorably of the project. There are manufacturers, lawyers, bankers and business men who have made a personal investigation, who favor bringing it here. It is now up to the men with money to aid in the work. It is up to the men with small amounts to also do their part and together Janesville can be pushed ahead and take its place in the manufacturing world.

THE FAIR.

Everyone should become a personal booster for the Janesville fair which will be held in August. It is going to be a grand event in the annals of the city. To make it a success the men who have the handling of the finances should not neglect to make arrangements for the accommodation of the various exhibits, most important of which are the woman's building and the horticultural and agricultural exhibits. The cattle and swine departments with the poultry and sheep must also be looked after. Of course there will be a soda stand and by all means, but this must not overshadow the fact that it is to be a fair, not a race, that the people subscribed their money for last winter. Become a booster and put the date down in your note book so as not to forget. Janesville is to have a fair!

TODAY'S ELECTION.

Today's election means much to Janesville and its future. It is to be hoped that every citizen registered his vote on the question for or against the purchase of the water works. The Gazette has maintained that the city did not want to own the plant any more than a dog wants two tails, but it is up to the voters to decide. It is to be trusted they have voted their convictions so that there will be no excuses later on relative to the important question.

Huerta is increasing his army by enlisting the peons and drilling them to fight the hated "Gringos." Meanwhile the "watchful waiting policy" down at Washington does not permit of increasing the American army by enlisting the volunteers.

May is keeping up its usual record for bad storms and disasters. The cyclonic breeze of yesterday that swept over southern Dane and northern Rock and Jefferson counties left a trail of desolation in its wake.

If you have not voted do so before it is too late. If you fail to register your opinion on the purchase of the water works you have no complaint to make whatever the outcome is.

It is Chief of Police Champion now and he is taking hold of affairs with a spirit and a vim that bespeaks well for future activity in this important branch of the civic government.

Uncle Sam honored its soldier and sailor dead Monday when the bodies of the brave boys who gave their lives up at Vera Cruz arrived in New York.

There was enough free water fell last night to satisfy the most pessimistic citizen and added to it a slap was taken at the ice trust in the afternoon when the hail arrived.

Activity on the Panama toll question is being lost sight of these strenuous days of A. B. C. diplomacy.

 Providing that we take the morning paper's daily lunch.
 About your weather prophecies galore.
 We take a cravenette along, and even a diving suit.
 A linen duster and a palm leaf fan.
 A heavy winter overcoat and seal-skin cap to boot.
 A parasol to keep away the tan;
 A pair of woolen leggings and a Panama chapeau.
 And seven suits of varied underwear.
 Whenever we brave the elements and set about to go.
 And make a friendly visit anywhere.

The Editor's Job.

How would you like to be the editor of the home paper, and sit at your desk six days of the week, four weeks of a month, and 12 months of a year, and have such copy as the following to edit? "Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let a can opener slip and cut herself in the panty." "A mischievous lass of Picketown threw a stone and struck Mr. F. J. in the alleyway on Tuesday." "John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week, looking for a tea and fell, striking himself on the back porch." "While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from the social Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green four times in the public square." "Mr. Long, while harnessing a bronco last Saturday was kicked, just south of the corn crib."

Uncle Abner.

What has become of the old-fashioned milk that used to raise nice thick cream?
 Our genial undertaker, Amos Butts, does not expect to do spring planting this year as everybody seems to be in excellent health. He has rented the top part of his house to our clothing dealer, Lem Purdy, to use as a show case.
 A smartaleck got off'n the train the other day and asked Station Agent Ben Binks where he could find the haberdashers and Ben told him there wasn't no such family living in our village.
 Most of the fellows who go around complaining that business is dull are the fellows who never did any business when it was good.
 Lem Higgins' oldest son I think certainly go a bright future. He is workin' in a looking glass factory.
 Most of the fellows who used to part their hair in the middle have reformed.

Signs of the Times.

T. R. is collecting botanical specimens in South America far from war's alarms.
 While the others join in battle Drooping canisters in showers. And resort where Maxims rattle, Teddy's busy picking flowers.

It is said cattle will soon be selling for 2 cents a pound less on the roof in Chicago, but they probably will never sell for less on the butcher's block.

New York girl collapsed when an automobile tire exploded. But the owner was the one who should have collapsed. He had to buy the new tire.

Society says he is satisfied with the size of his army of 35 men. So are the residents of the territory through which it is passing.

If District Attorney Whitman of New York ever does find the "man higher up," he will have to use an aeroplane.

Thatched Huts Are of the Past.

The disappearance of the picturesque roofs of Samoan huts is attributed to the increasing wealth of the natives and the partial destruction by insects of the wild sugar cane used for thatch. Corrugated iron is taking the place of the old material.

FILM COMPANY SUED FOR ATTACK ON DOCTORS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Berlin, May 12.—On the ground that it tended to destroy public confidence in physicians, Herr von Jagow, secretary of the Berlin police, recently prohibited the production of a moving picture drama entitled "The Slave of a Woman." The film told a picture story of a doctor infatuated with a woman and in the course of a drama, persuades a titled subject to an unnecessary operation which he declares will alone save her life in order to get money for his paramour.
The film company appealed from the order of the police. The upper court has just rendered a decision upholding the action of the head of police. The court declared that it was in the interest of public order and welfare that confidence in physicians should not be shaken; that the film in question undoubtedly tended to do this and that it was the duty of the authorities to prevent such attacks upon the medical profession.

NAVY SECRETARY DANIELS AND HIS WAR COUNCIL IN SESSION

Secretary Daniels holds a daily council of war with his aids in his office at the navy department in Washington and this picture was taken during one of the conferences. Until last week the council had consisted only of men assigned to him as aids, but recently he added Major General Barnett, commandant of the marine corps, to the council because he considered a representative of that body necessary. The other councillors besides Barnett are Admiral Victor Blue, chief of the bureau of navigation and acting aid for personnel; Captain A. F. Fechteler, aid for inspection; Captain A. G. Winterhalter, aid for material, and Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, aid for operations of the fleet.

THE BOYS' CLOTHES QUESTION

To clothe boys economically and well is the object of the endeavors of this store.

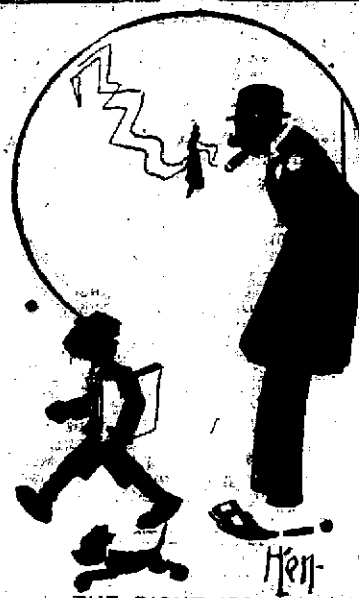

Untiring efforts to enlarge and increase the number of buyers in this section by the soundest and firmest business principles of supplying better garments at a much lower price than can be had elsewhere are emphatically demonstrated in the unusual value placed on sale for this week's selling.

We have studied boys' clothes—concluded that boys are "bound to be boys" and that they must have a certain amount of sturdiness along with style, in the make of their garments.

Come this week, learn the special prices in force and save money.

Colorado military commission. Left to right: Capt. Philip Van Hise, Maj. E. J. Boughton, and Capt. W. C. Danks.

After a secret investigation, in which state militiamen and others were questioned, the Colorado state military commission recently found that the state militia willfully burned the Ludlow strikers' tent colony, where women and eleven children perished, and looted the colony. The Women's Peace league, which also made an investigation, found that little children, as well as women, were sabred by the militia, and that fifty women who were about to become mothers were driven by bullets from their tents.

World's Darkest Moment.

The darkest moment is said to be just before dawn. This is now discovered not to be so. The darkest moment, relatively speaking, is when the noonday sun shines. Then it is that living things on the earth are blinded by the dazzle of the sun and fail to recognize the light that never fails out in space.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

GETTING INTO TUNE.
TO EVERY mother's son and daughter of us there sometimes come days when "everything goes wrong." We cannot seem to accomplish anything; we spoil whatever we touch; little happenings make us nervous; we find ourselves quarreling with those we love the best; we cannot concentrate our minds on anything; the simplest questions confuse us, the most trivial difficulties irritate us. In short, life seems a burden, and the whole outlook inexpressibly gloomy.

Now to keep oneself at one's task when in such a mood takes a great deal of grit, but I sometimes wonder if it isn't misplaced grit. Such a thing is possible, you know. And to free oneself from one's task and give oneself a chance to get back into tune with the universe may be a far more efficient way of dealing with the situation.

There are many little ways of removing the tension which such a mood indicates. To my mind the very best is to lay down your work and go out doors. Nothing in the world tranquilizes the nerves like fresh air, exercise and change of scene. You do not have to be a Marathon runner to be able to walk away from irritation and discouragement. I cannot tell you how many black moods I have walked off in the course of my life. It is a theory of mine that family quarrels would be enormously reduced if the parties to them would form the habit of taking a walk whenever they felt a storm coming. Grievances are left behind so quickly in the course of such a walk that even if one wanted to take up the quarrel on one's return, one would scarcely remember what it was all about.

Next to a walk, a good rest is the best way to get oneself back into tune with the universe. If you can, remove your clothes and take a good nap. You may think to spare the time but it will not be wasted. Sleep has a marvelous way of changing the dreariest outlook and when you wake up you will go to things with a new courage which will add quite enough to your efficiency to make up for lost time.

When the fretful, inefficient mood has hold of one, it sometimes helps just to go upstairs, bathe, do your hair up anew and put on a becoming gown. Nothing gives a woman courage and confidence like the realization that she looks well. So, absurd as it may sound to masculine ears, a half hour spent in this way will often banish the unsatisfactory mood.

Again, a half hour in a comfortable chair with an interesting book will sometimes give the needed relief from tension to both mind and body. There is a time to hold oneself to one's work and a time to let up on one's self. Be careful not to confuse the two.

Heart and Home Problems BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a boy for about five months. He always says that he likes me better than any other girl he knows, as I have more sense than the average girl. I also tell my sister the same thing, yet he absolutely ignores me for days at a time. (2) The boy I like will come to see me and would come every week night for a week. I would tell him. What do you think of him?

(2) I am 20 years of age, about 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh about 150 pounds. Is that too much?

(3) I don't like dances, especially the tango, and hate mushy boys and don't want any boy to kiss me. The boys and girls call me an old maid and say that I ought to go with a minister instead of the boy I do go with. Do you think I am old maidish?

(4) The boy I like with is one who loves to have a good time and doesn't care about work. The girls he has always gone with up to the time he met me were girls who danced and drank and were always kissing the boys. Can you tell me why he should like me as well as he says he does? (I know that he doesn't go out with other girls, for the nights he isn't with me he is with the boys.)

A READER: (1) He is rather peculiar. He perhaps hasn't quite decided in his mind whether he really wants to settle down with you as his girl for the rest of his life or not. Give him time and don't humor him too much. He's working out a great problem for himself, and perhaps doesn't even know it yet.

(2) You are a bit too heavy. Exercise a little more (outdoors if possible), and do not eat candies, cake or any rich, fat-producing foods. (3) I think you are self-respectful. A chance of marrying a decent man than any of the girls who "mush" with the boys. (4) He likes you because you are different from the others and because he can respect you. Men always like best the women they can respect as well as love. But I would not put my heart on him, my dear, until he shows that he earnestly cares for you by working for you and making a good home for a wife.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fourteen years. I am five feet four inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. Am I too heavy for my height? (2) I am in the seventh grade at school. Am I far enough advanced? (3) I live in town and often attend the show. What time should I be home? (4) Am I too young to have fellows? (5) Am I too young to correspond with fellows? (6) What is good for ingrown toenails?

O. A. S. (1) You are a little too heavy for your age. You might train down with exercise. Stop eating candy, cakes and rich foods. (2) Yes. (3) If you mean at night—a little girl of your age should be home and getting ready for bed at 9 o'clock. You must have plenty of sleep, my dear, and a good deal of it before midnight. If you mean to be a healthy, happy and beautiful woman. (4) Yes. (5) There is no harm writing letters to boy friends out of town, provided your mother knows all about it and the letters are the kind you are not ashamed to have her read. (6) First get rid of the cause, which is probably a badly fitting shoe. Or you may not have been putting the nail properly. Cut the nail so that the center will extend beyond the toe. Push back the flesh where it tries to grow over the nail and hold it back with surgeon's plaster. Put a little gauze or absorbent cotton under the nail edge. If there is a chiropodist anywhere near you go to him for treatment.

The KITCHEN CABINET

To be equal, physically and mentally to our day's work depends upon the food we eat.

The palate is the janitor; unless he be reconciled the most nutritious food will find no welcome.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

When you are looking for a change in salad dressings try the following: Take two rounded tablespoonfuls of mashed potatoes which has been put through a ricer, add a half teaspoonful of mustard, a half teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a few dashes of cayenne and one egg without beating.

When well mixed add a cupful of olive oil very slowly. When all the oil is added season with salt and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and one of lemon juice. Use on celery and cabbage or any combination of vegetables at hand.

Chicken Cutlets.—This is a dish which will be ideal for a company, and will not prove very expensive. Cook a four-pound fowl in six quarts of boiling water with a carrot sliced, two slices of turnips, salt, a small onion, and a stalk of celery, one bay leaf and three sprigs of thyme. Cook slowly until tender, then remove the fowl, and chop it, not too fine. Make a rich cream sauce, using a quarter of a cupful each of flour and butter, and a cupful of rich milk and a half teaspoonful of salt. The chicken broth may be used instead of the milk, if so desired. Moisten the chopped chicken with the sauce, add a beaten egg and set away to become cold. Then mold into cutlet shapes, roll in egg and crumbs, being sure they are well crumbed or they will break open when fried. Cook in deep fat and garnish with parsley. Serve with currant jelly or with a lemon jelly.

Banana Fritters.—Bake sufficient bananas until soft, remove them from their skins and roll in macaroon dust, and serve.

Jelly Sauce.—Melt half a cupful of currant jelly in two-thirds of a cupful of boiling water. Thicken with a tablespoonful of arrowroot, mixed with a tablespoonful of cold water and add directly to the jelly. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one of powdered sugar to the sauce. This makes a most delicious dessert, and one which will be easy to prepare.

Tea stains must be washed first in cold water, then in boiling water. For fruit stains on line make a paste of powdered starch and water. Cover the stain, leave on some time, then brush off lightly. Grease marks can be at once removed with petrol—but with no light near. Work from beyond the mark gradually toward the center of it. Baked potatoes make an excellent substitute for soap when the hands have become blackened by contact with pots and pans. Rub a little potato well into the hands and wash in warm water.

THE TABLE.

Dandelion Wine.—Take four quarts of the yellow petals of the dandelion and pour over them into a tub one gallon of warm water that has previously been boiled. Stir it well and cover with a clean blanket; let stand three days, during which time it should be stirred frequently. Strain off the flowers from the liquid and boil it for half an hour with the rind of a lemon, the rind of an orange and a little ginger and three and one-half pounds of lump sugar to each gallon; add the sugar and the lemon from which the rind was removed, in slices, to the boiling liquor, and when cool ferment with yeast on a piece of toast. Let it stand for a day or two before putting into a cask and in two months bottle.

Rhubarb Wine.—In a double boiler boil the rhubarb, adding no water, after washing it and cutting it into small pieces. Press out and measure all the juice; add an equal quantity of water, sweeten to taste and add brandy in the proportion of one cupful to every gallon of the liquid. Bottle and seal.

Peasants.—Soak one pint of dried beans overnight. Put to boil in cold salted water; when cooked drain and press through a fine colander into a saucepan; add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of molasses, one tablespoonful of butter, one saltspoonful of pepper, a dash of cayenne and a little ground mustard, beating continuously, and last add one tablespoonful of vinegar. Serve in a vegetable dish very hot.

Fried Corn.—Cut the corn carefully women are interested in so many more things than they used to be—because dividing a day among household duties, politics, clubs, charitable society, business, and personal care is a strenuous thing—and strenuous life makes marks upon the face, the woman of today who wants to stay young has long since started to add nature to its uneven fight and many of the wisest and busiest have decided upon this economical and reliable jelly soap as the simplest wrinkle remover and skin stimulator. It protects the surface of the skin and brings the blood to the surface where it performs its up-building work. Just get from your druggist an ounce of almond oil, put it into a fruit jar and add half a pint of water and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Let this mixture stand for several hours, stirring occasionally during this time. Before retiring apply rather thick over wrinkled or dry surface and allow it to dry. It will harden rapidly and, when applied, you will note a slight tightening of the skin. In the morning remove with hot water—and note the immediate effect which is lasting.—Advertisement.

Women Worth While

Mrs. John Hays Hammond.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)
Eugenics? It's something of a hard old word, and far from trivial. Yet in Washington, the seat of the fashion, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of the millionaire mining engineer, has succeeded in interesting the smart women of the capital in this difficult and little known subject. Many of her friends have caught her enthusiasm.

Mrs. Hammond is a hostess of international prominence. Her house at Washington is frequented by the most exclusive members of the residential, diplomatic and official sets. In New York their friends are not only the society leaders of the metropolis, but men and women in the front ranks of artists, writers and social workers. When John Hays Hammond was appointed by President Taft special ambassador to the coronation of King George, the Hammonds occupied the London house of their old friend, the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, and dispensed a lavish hospitality to all properly accredited Americans. The guests were of the highest social and official rank. Mrs. Hammond at various coronation festivities were of regal beauty, and her jewels were on the same scale of magnificence. Indeed, the coronation of King George was worn by Mrs. Hammond in London, and which she often wears in Washington and New York during the season, are those which once delighted an emperor's gaze. Originally belonged to Catherine II or Russia.

Mrs. Hammond's interest does not center in clothes and jewels. She has influenced a large number of women along more serious lines. Being a born leader, it has required no special courage to make good works the fashion among her friends.

Mrs. Hammond took the initiative in interesting Washington women in eugenics recently, when she invited teachers, preachers, physicians, sociologists and society folk to a meeting at her home. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and the women of the cabinet were among those who accepted the invitation and went. Mrs. Hammond presented them to Dr. Elmore C. Folkmar, who for years has waged a campaign for the franker education of adults and children in matters of sex hygiene, and who made a striking talk along this line. Now Mrs. Hammond is working heart and soul for the cause of practical eugenics. "We need," she declares, "a great national organization for scientific research, but none which will have for its purpose the popularizing of the facts of eugenics, so that these facts may be incorporated into the practical life of the people."

Mrs. Hammond herself is a happy wife and the mother of five children. It is out of a largeness of blessing that she desires for the happiness of other women and other women's children has arisen. She is a born enthusiast and she is doing a big work toward the popularizing of those sedate companions whom our wasteful friend, Irvin Cobb, calls "The Genic Twins—eu and hy!"

Household Hints

From six ears of sweet corn. Do not score and be careful not to cut any of the cob with the corn, but have each grain separate. Put one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan; put in the corn and fry until nice brown, stirring often. Draw the pan away from the hot fire, add half a cupful of hot cream and salt and pepper to taste. Serve at once in a hot dish.

Lemon Puff.—Ten eggs, yolks mixed thoroughly with the juice of two lemons and the grated rinds, one cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of water. Place in a double boiler, cook until smooth and very thick; then add the whites, beaten very stiff, and stir the whole together, but lightly. This will serve about ten persons.

Frozen Plum Pudding.—Beat six egg yolks to a cream; pour over one cupful of scalded milk; add extract of cinnamon and a cupful of sugar. Cook until the mixture coats a spoon, then add four tablespoonfuls of melted chocolate and a pint of chopped mixed fruit and of cream. Freeze, then pack in a mould and bury in ice and salt for two hours.

CORN PLANTING TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED

ALLEN B. WEST URGES BOYS TO SEND IN THEIR NAMES EARLY.

SHELL CORN BY HAND

Following Paragraphs Explain to Youths Just How to Successfully Get a Good Crop.

Corn planting time is at hand, and the boys who are going into the contest should send in their names at once to the secretary of the Commercial club, E. Lane, and get things in readiness for planting. We will suppose that the acre of ground has been selected and put into shape by frequent harrowing to conserve the moisture and keep down the weeds. Also that the selected ears of seed corn have been tested and the best of them, those that showed four strong growing kernels, have been laid aside for planting. The next step in securing good seed is to shell the corn. This should be done by hand and should commence by shelling off the kernels from the butt and tips of the ears. These are not to be planted. After this the rest of the ear should be shelled and kernels of uniform size and shape selected for planting. All odd shaped, broken or damaged kernels being rejected. If a corn grader is available it may be used to secure a uniform size. If not the work of grading and selecting only the best must be done by hand, as it is very important.

Then before planting the machine or corn planter should be thoroughly tested to see that four kernels are dropped each time, for there should be no guess about this matter.

Having your corn shelled and sorted and your planter ready the next step is to put the finishing touches upon the ground. This is to be done by harrowing and rubbing until there is a seed bed 4 to 5 inches in depth of fine soil free from lumps. If there are clods in the field remove them by shelling and kernels are not stumps to interfere with the successful working of the ground.

There are different methods of planting but a good way is to plant in hills 3 feet 6 inches apart each way, with four kernels to a hill about one inch deep. Another way is to plant the rows 3 feet 6 inches apart and the hills about half that distance or eighteen inches, putting three kernels in this case the corn is thinned out after the corn comes up to two stalks.

Of course, for the contest one of the four kinds named must be selected for seed. King Golden Bantam, Murdock, or Reid's Yellow Dent, the latter being a later variety than the others.

The boy that wants to be sure of a good yield on his acre will watch carefully for the appearance of the first green shoots that show that the corn is up, and will note carefully the appearance of every hill. If any are missing he will replant at once from seed saved from his first planting for that purpose. Missing hills may become, even with perfect seed, for crows and gophers and other enemies are quite likely to be on hand for their share of the grain.

Watch the Gazette for further directions and tell all your friends about the contest and get them to send in their names with yours. There is a good time ahead for all of you.

ALLEN B. WEST.

RURAL TEACHERS TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

Superintendent Antisdel Gathers Data With Reference to Practical School Matters.

With the idea of gathering some interesting data showing the work done in Rock county rural schools along social lines, and ascertaining the amount of improvements in school equipment in the various districts during the past year, Superintendent O. D. Antisdel has sent out to the teachers a list of questions which they are requested to answer and return to him.

Some of the questions are as follows: "How many mothers' meetings were held this year in your district? Explain concisely what was done at such meetings? What benefits were derived from these meetings? Were any evening meetings or programs held in the district? If so, tell briefly about each one. How much money, if any, was taken in at these meetings and for what was it spent?"

Do you have any paper on current events for the school? Do you have any agricultural paper for the school? Do you have free text books?

"What new equipment has the district added during the year? What repairs have been made by the district? What improvements in the grounds? If you have a school garden tell about it briefly."

Many good things have been done in the rural schools this year, and many new things provided. Superintendent Antisdel explains in a note to the teachers. "We want to make a summary to show what has been done and to encourage others to do more hereafter. I know you will cooperate heartily in this work."

DR. BEATON WRITES OF VIVID CONTRASTS IN WESTERN LANDS

Southern California Has Peculiarities In American Civilization. Soil Is Rich for Farmers.

My Dear Mr. Bliss: Southern California is the country of vivid contrasts in American civilization. Yesterday I toured over the San Francisco valley which runs northwest from Los Angeles between the Sierra Madre and the Santa Monica hills. There is the new town of Van Nuys, which was built in a single day and night, and has a "broad rose and palm bordered drive as wide as Drexel Boulevard. This and other new towns are carved out of the old Lankersten ranch of 50,000 acres and its orchards are so near intensive farmers. It is a noble rich and beautiful valley. Here, also, furnishing the vivid contrast, is the San Fernando Mission, once one of the largest of the celebrated religious pearls that were strung along the Camino Real from San Diego to San Francisco. Its chambers are now musty and dark, its walls are crumbling, the great beams are falling through the roof, the bridge, the crime against art and piety to let those monuments of the Spanish era and the work of the good Padres of mission period, perish; but recently some public spirited action is being taken to preserve them.

In close proximity to this relic of by-gone days is the outlet of the great Owens River water supply for the city of Los Angeles. It is here also they are building the large dam for the irrigation purposes, and when completed will create an entire new county. In fact, this is the point where the first great by-product of the water scheme is to revolutionize adjacent Los Angeles.

In a word it means that the city will spread itself out for miles by virtue of its municipal ownership of an irrigation plant in addition to its domestic water supply. In the course of this drive over perfect boulevard lined roads, along hedges of roses, tulips, poppies and yellow wild mustard, one could not help realize that it all was created in less than one generation. But there are many problems before this community. The greatest of all being the surplus rains, rather cloud bursts, that come down from the hills with the elemental force of tornadoes, building before them boulders as large as a bungalow. The hills are so steep and the orchards are so near the foothills that no dam can restrain these floods. But the courage and ability of the people is so great that even this engineering problem will yet be solved.

We returned from the valley via the Laurel Canon, one of those freak hill sites for suburban residences, now become famous here. Up the hill, vet, the great distance, canons are beautiful, bungalows and even elegant mansions and viewed from the Los Angeles side the hills of Berkeley and Hollywood are crowned with structures like the castles of Italy and Spain.

I am still occupied with my classes in applied psychology and literature which are being attended by some of the leading women of the clubs here, and I give them a public lecture on social science about the end of May. The woman here has arrived. She is highly cultured, elegantly dressed, a public spirited and with her vote, a power in the social and civic life of the community. I am to attend a function tonight in Pasadena, where I expect to see them at their best.

So there.

Sincerely, DAVID BEATON.

ARE ENJOYING THEIR WEEKLY INSTRUCTION

High School Students' Singing Club Is Meeting With Success. Practice Every Thursday.

The new idea of placing singing books in the hands of each high school student, every Thursday morning for a fifteen minute song practice, is meeting with a good deal of success. Under the direction of Miss Emily Sewell, the entire four classes, consisting of over 125 students, join their voices and at the first note the spacious assembly room is filled with volume.

The fact that the students are willing to sing and exert every effort to do their best, makes the regular weekly morning song practices of more interest. There is no single tone breathed, because every boy in the school with a high voice is found singing tenor, while every girl having a low voice carries the alto air.

The same is true with the soprano and bass parts.

The singing books contain difficult selections, but they do not appear to

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Whisky Poison Killed By Neal Treatment

Modern medical science teaches—your knowledge of the many "twists" of formerly good men and the bitter experience of mankind proves that poison of alcohol is always retained in the system of the person who indulges constantly or at times excessively, and very frequently from very "moderate" or only occasional indulgence by high-class men and women of sedentary habits who are most susceptible to the poison of alcohol.

Some of the symptoms and effects of Alcoholic poisoning are desire, appetite, and craving for liquor, nervousness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, restlessness, headaches, heart, stomach, liver, kidney and other serious disorders and ailments.

Not only is elimination the only cure for these serious "whisky disorders," but the diseased man will not and cannot quit drinking so long as this virulent poison remains in his system demanding more and more "fuel for the fire" until outraged nature rebels and demands the penalty—insanity or untimely death.

The Neal Treatment acts as an antidote for the poison of Alcohol, neutralizes its effects upon the functions and tissues of the body and eliminates it from the system—it removes the cause so easily, quickly and effectively that in from three to seven days the normal man returns to his home and usual work with a loathing instead of craving for liquor—perfectly cured.

The Neal Treatment appeals to and is patronized by high-class men and women who seek its benefits the same as they seek medical help for other serious human ailments. It may be taken at any one of the sixty splendid Neal Institutes established in principal cities. Treatment at home, hotel or club in "moderate" cases will be arranged for upon application.

There are no dangerous hypodermic injections used. No injury to health; no bad after effects. For free booklet call or write: The Neal Institute, State and 17th Street, Milwaukee, Wis.—Advertisement.

The PLACE of HONEY-MOONS HAROLD MAC GRATH Pictures by C.D. RHODES

"In short, Nora had spoken truthfully. She had seen a man dressed in white flannels and canvas shoes, but her eyes had not traveled so far as his face."

Mrs. Harrigan took the omnibus up to the villa. It was generally too much of a climb for her. Nora and Celeste preferred to walk.

"What am I going to do, Celeste? He is here, and over at Cadenabbia last night I had a terrible scene with him. In heaven's name, why can't they let me be?"

"Herr Rosen?"

"Yes."

"Why not speak to your father?"

"And have a fistful which would appear in every newspaper in the world? No, thank you. There is enough scandalous stuff being printed as it is, and I am helpless to prevent it."

As the climb starts off stiffly, there wasn't much inclination in either to talk. Celeste had come to one decision, and that was that Nora should find out Courtland's presence here in Bellagio herself. When they arrived at the villa gates, Celeste offered a suggestion.

"You could easily stop all this rumor and annoyance."

"And, pray, how?"

"Marry."

"I prefer the rumor and annoyance. I hate men. Most of them are beasts."

"You are prejudiced."

If Celeste expected Nora to reply that she had reason, she was disappointed. Nora quickened her pace, that was all.

At luncheon Harrigan innocently threw a bomb into camp by inquiring: "Say, Nora, who's this chump Herr Rosen? He was up here last night and again this morning. I was going to offer him the cot on the balcony, but I thought I'd consult you first."

"Herr Rosen!" exclaimed Mrs. Harrigan, a flutter in her throat. "Why, that's..."

"A charming young man who wishes me to sign a contract to sing to him in perpetuity," interrupted Nora, pressing her mother's foot warily.

"Well, why don't you marry him?" laughed Harrigan. "There's worse things than frankfurters and sauerkraut."

"Not that I can think of just now," returned Nora.

Harrigan declared that he would not go over to Carley Webster's to tea.

"But I've promised for you!" expostulated his wife. "And he admires you so."

"Booh! You women can gad about as much as you please, but I'm in wrong when it comes to eating sponge cake and knocking my knees under a dinky willow table."

The women departed at three, for there was to be tennis until five o'clock. When Harrigan was reasonably sure that they were half the distance to the colonel's villa, he put on his hat, whistled to the dachsel, and together they took the path to the village.

"We'd look fine drinking tea, wouldn't we, old scout?" reaching down and tweaking the dog's velvet ears.

"They don't understand, and it's no use trying to make 'em. Nora gets as near as possible, Herr Rosen! Now, where have I seen his phiz before? I wish I had a real man to talk to. Abbott sulks half the time, and the Barone can't get a joke unless it's driven in with a mallet. On your way, old scout, or I'll step on you. Let's see if we can hoof it down to the village at a trot without taking the count."

He had but two errands to execute. The first was accomplished expeditiously in the little tobacconist's shop under the arcade, where the purchase of a box of Minnetta cigars promised later solace. The second errand took time and deliberation. He studied the long shelves of Tauchnitz. Having red corpuses in superabundance, he naturally preferred them in his literature, in the same quantity.

"Ever read this?" asked a pleasant voice from behind, indicating "Rodney Stone" with the ferrule of a cane.

Harrigan looked up. "No. What's it about?"

"Best story of the London prize ring ever written. You're Mr. Harrigan, aren't you?"

"Yes," diffidently.

"My name is Edward Courtland. If I am not mistaken, you were a great friend of my father's."

"Are you Dick Courtland's boy?"

"I am."

"Well, say!" Harrigan held out his hand and was gratified to encounter a man's grasp. "So you're Edward Courtland? Now, what do you think of that? Why, your father was the best sportsman I ever met. Square as they make 'em. Not a kink anywhere in his make-up. He used to come to the bouts in his pug hat and dress suit; always had a seat by the ring. I could hear him tap with his cane when there happened to be a bit of pretty sparring. He was no slouch himself when it came to putting on the mitts. Many's the time I've had a round or two with him in my old gymnasium. Well, well! It's good to see a man again. I've seen your name in the papers, but I never knew you was Dick's boy. You've got an old grizzly's head in your dining room at home. Some day I'll tell you how it got there, when you're not in a hurry. I went out to Montana for a scrap, and your dad went along. After the mill was over, we went hunting. Come up to the villa and meet the folks. ... Hang it, I forgot. They're up to Carley Webster's to tea; piffle water and sticky sponge cake. I want you to meet my wife and daughter."

"I should be very pleased to meet them." So this was Nora's father?

"Won't you come along with me to the colonel's?" with sudden inspiration. Here was an opportunity not to be thrust aside lightly.

"Why, I just begged off. They won't be expecting me now."

"All the better. I'd rather have you introduce me to your family than to have the colonel. As a matter of fact, I told him I couldn't get up. But I changed my mind. Come along." The first rift in the storm-packed clouds; and to meet her through the kindly offices of this amiable man who was her father!

"But the pup and the cigar box?"

"Send them up."

Harrigan eyed his own spotless flannels and compared them with the others. What was good enough for the son of a millionaire was certainly good enough for him. Besides, it would be a bully good joke on Nora and Molly.

"You're on!" he cried. Here was a lark. He turned the dog and the purchases over to the proprietor, who promised that they should arrive instantly at the villa.

Then the two men sought the quay to engage a boat. They walked shoulder to shoulder, flat-backed, with supple swinging limbs, tanned faces and clear animated eyes. Perhaps Harrigan was 10 or 15 pounds heavier, but the difference would have been noticeable only upon the scales.

"Padre, my shoe pinches," said Nora with a pucker between her eyes.

"My child," replied the padre, "never carry your vanity into a shoemaker's shop. The happiest man is he who walks in loose shoes."

"If they are his own, and not inherited," quickly.

The padre laughed quietly. He was very fond of this new-found daughter of his. Her spontaneity, her blooming beauty, her careless observation of convention, her independence, had captivated him. Sometimes he believed that he thoroughly understood her, when all at once he would find himself mentally peering into some dark corner into which the penetrating light of his usually swift deduction could throw no glimmer. She possessed the sins of the butterfly and the latent possibilities of a Judith. She was the most interesting feminine problem he had in his long years encountered. The mother mildly amused him, for he could discern the character that she was sedulously striving to batten down beneath insane social usages and formalities. Some day she would revert to the original type, and then he would be glad to renew the acquaintance.

In rather a "shamefaced way" (a sensation he could not quite analyze) he loved the father. The pugilist will always embarrass the scholar and excite a negligible envy; for physical perfection is the most envied of all nature's gifts. The padre was short, thickset, and inclined toward stoutness in the region of the middle button of his cassock. But he was active enough for all purposes.

"I have had many wicked thoughts lately," resumed Nora, turning her gaze away from the tennis players. She and the padre were sitting on the lower steps of the veranda. The others were loitering by the nets.

"The old plaint disturbs you?"

"Yes."

"Can you not cast it out wholly?"

"Hate has many tentacles."

"What produces that condition of mind?" meditatively. "Is it because we have wronged somebody?"

"Or because somebody has wronged us?"

"Or misjudged us, by us has been misjudged?" softly.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Nora, springing up.

"What is it?"

"Father is coming up the path!"

"I am glad to see him. But I do not recollect having seen the face of the man with him."

The lithe eagerness went out of Nora's body instantly. Everything seemed to grow cold, as if she had become enveloped in one of those fogs that suddenly blow down menacingly from hidden icebergs. Fortunately the inquiring eyes of the padre were not directed at her. He was here, not a dozen yards away, coming toward her, her father's arm in his! After what had passed he had dared! It was not often that Nora Harrigan was subjected to a touch of vertigo, but at this moment she felt that if she stirred ever so little she must fall. The stock whence she had sprung, however, was aggressive and fearless; and by the time Courtland had reached the outer markings of the courts, Nora was physically herself again. The advantage of the meeting would be his. That was indubitable. Any mistake on her part would be playing into his hands. If only she had known!

"Let us go and meet them, padre," she said quietly. With her father, her mother and the others, the inevitable introduction would be shorn of its danger. What Celeste might think was of no great importance; Celeste had been tried and her loyalty proved. Where had her father met him, and what diabolical stroke of fate had made him bring this man up here?

"Nora!" It was her mother calling. She put her arm through the padre's, and they went forward leisurely.

"Why, father, I thought you weren't coming," said Nora. Her voice was without a tremor.

The padre hadn't the least idea that a volcano might at any moment open up at his side. He smiled benignly.

"Changed my mind," said Harrigan. "Nora, Molly, I want you to meet Mr. Courtland. I don't know that I ever said anything about it, but his father was one of the best friends I ever had. He was on his way up here, so I came along with him." Then Harrigan paused and looked about him embarrassedly. There were half a dozen unfamiliar faces.

The colonel quickly stepped into the breach, and the introduction of Courtland became general. Nora bowed, and became at once engaged in an animated conversation with the Barone, who had just finished his set victoriously.

The padre's benign smile slowly faded.

CHAPTER IX.

Dick Courtland's Boy.

Presently the servants brought out the tea-service. The silent dark-skinned Sikh, with his fierce curling whiskers, his flashing eyes, the semi-military, semi-oriental garb, topped by an enormous brown turban, claimed Courtland's attention; and it may be added that he was glad to have something to look at unembarrassedly. He wanted to catch the Indian's eye, but Rao had no glances to waste; he was concerned with the immediate business of superintending the service.

Courtland had never been a man to surrender to impulse. It had been his habit to form a purpose and then to go about the fulfilling of it. During the last four or five months, however, he had swung about like a weathercock in April, the victim of a thousand and one impulses. That morning he would have laughed had any one prophesied his presence here. He had fought against the inclination strongly enough at first, but as hour after hour went by his resolution weakened. His meeting Harrigan had been a stroke of luck. Still, he would have come anyhow.

"Oh, yes; I am very fond of Como," he found himself replying mechanically to Mrs. Harrigan. He gave up Rao as hopeless so far as coming to his rescue was concerned. He began, despite his repugnance, to watch Nora.

Dinner Stories

One afternoon an esteemed citizen went into a barber shop to have his briars reaped, but no sooner had he taken a seat in one of the chairs than he dropped into a heavy slumber. Apparently the shave artist was having his own troubles in manipulating the customer, and after making several attempts he thoughtfully paused.

"Excuse me, sir," said he, gently shaking the man in the chair, "but would you mind waking up? I can't shave you while you are asleep."

"Can't shave me while I'm asleep," exclaimed the victim, with a wondering expression. "Why not?"

When Jones called on the Browns with an important message last night he had no umbrella. It was raining pitchforks and he was soaked to the skin. Mrs. Brown was sympathetic and hospitable.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OHLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs. It has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
